

REACHING FOR SAFETY EXCELLENCE

Daily Safety Focus AT RISK BEHAVIORS

As turnaround winds down, work force reduces, and people start returning home to their families, we typically see a decrease in the number of incidents and injuries happening. Unfortunately that has not been the case. After 53 days we are still seeing the same unsafe behaviors that we saw on day 1.

People are still choosing not to use handrails, in some cases we are still doing impact and grinding work without face shields, and we are still choosing to use process equipment as work platforms. In some instances we are working without basic PPE. Workers are not identifying the potential hazards of the work they are completing or are accepting the hazards! In doing we are choosing not to work safe, and as a result, injuries are still occurring.

Project Olympus has seen significant improvements in voice card participation, the quality of voice cards and peer to peer interventions. This shows us that people are willing to make the changes that need to be made.

Set a goal for yourself every day to ensure you, and the people working around you go home safe. To achieve this goal, identify the hazards you will encounter throughout your task and eliminate/control them before they result in injury.

LEADERS' QUESTION TO WORKERS:
What hazards are you accepting?
